Vase preparation tips for Spray Roses

How to make sure you can enjoy your beautiful Spray Roses? Although vase preparation for Spray Roses is similar to standard or single roses, there are a few guidelines to ensure that your Sprays look their best. If you keep the following tips in mind when preparing your Spray Roses for the vase, you will experience the full extent of their beauty and benefit from longer vaselife:

- Make sure your vase is very clean. The best way is to desinfect your vase.
- Next, fill your vase with water, preferably room temperature so not too warm or too cold.
- Use the right amount of cut flower food, check the label for a recommendation.
- Cut the Spray Rose stem at a 45 degree angle. A sharp kitchen knife is best.
- Lastly, the most important rule to keep in mind is to keep the vase full, because Spray Roses will drink a lot of water!

This last rule is the big difference between Single Roses and Spray Roses. The Single rose has to transport the water to one bloom only, whereas a Spray Rose has to transport the water to many blooms. This is also why you have to keep your vase as clean as possible; the tubes in the stem need to stay free of bacteria and unblocked as long as possible in order for all the blooms to open.
